

Award Winning Builder

It should come as no surprise that the inspired design and flawless finishing of Parkhill's South Pointe display home was recognized with a gold award at this spring's Parade of Homes. From the perfect proportion and symmetry of every space to details such as the stunning stainless steel backsplash in the kitchen, every element of this house speaks to the vision and expertise of the builder.

After all, Parkhill's founder Derek Thorsteinson is not only a highly sought after custom builder, but also a Certified Master Builder and two-time president of the Manitoba Homebuilder's association. Over the years, he has served the industry on a number of committees, both locally and nationally. Derek is the Manitoba representative to the Canadian Home Builders Association and Technical Research Committee. In fact, at this year's Parade of Homes, Thorsteinson was recognized with the William M. McCance Award for his leadership within the Canadian housing industry and his "record of participation and achievement in matters related to research issues, codes and standards, innovative technology and techniques, demonstration projects and technology transfer."

Along with this tribute, Parkhill Homes also earned a silver award for its Royalwood display home on East Oak. These gold and silver awards are only two of numerous accolades Parkhill built homes have won over the years and they certainly won't be the last.
